Testimonials – more information at www.erwinmaas.com:

“Erwin Maas consistently brings his actors beyond their ordinary habits of performance, to a professional level of artistry. Though not a native of English, Erwin’s ability to perceive and communicate the rhythm, cadence, harmony, and melody of the English language in Shakespeare, Chekhov, and other classic playwrights, as well as contemporary playwrights, places him among the ablest directors of theatre. His sensitivity to the musicality of language and to the breath of his actors is a unique gift possessed by few directors. His visual imagination and his, almost, cinematic transitions on stage are absolutely eye-catching and show a theatrical innovation. I am confident that Erwin Maas will continue to have a tremendous effect as a director of theatre in America and throughout the world.”

– Anne Bogart (Head of Columbia University’s MFA Directing program / Theatre Director)

“In his work, Erwin displays an uncommon insight that represents the best of what theatre can offer. He is a director in the grand manner. He represents the upper echelon of professional directors of theatre, and will greatly enhance our nation’s theatrical legacy.”

– Robert Woodruff (Former Artistic Director Harvard’s A.R.T. / Faculty Yale School of Drama / Theatre Director)

“Erwin is one of the most venturesome, talented and visionary directors that I have had the opportunity to work with. Among the many amazing aspects of Erwin’s work is an ability to push the boundaries of the medium, moving beyond realism, to an alternate theatrical reality that opens an audience up to new registers of meaning. The result is some of the most challenging, stimulating work that I’ve seen. Erwin has a way of getting under the skin of a particular play and presenting its underbelly, a process that is truly revelatory both in terms of capturing an author’s voice and expanding the vocabulary of theatre. He has forged a unique voice and vision that I feel is posed to transform the field and make a significant contribution to the future life of theatre.”

– Brian Kulick (Artistic Director Classic Stage Company NYC / Theatre Director)

“Erwin’s vision, theatrical ingenuity and directing skills made him a thrill to work with. I knew from the beginning that he was a director different from all the others I had worked with, for his spirit and dedication, and for his unique vision and intellectual flexibility and openness: he is a theatre visionary who has the ability not only to direct some of the highest quality and some of the most innovative theatre, he is also an infectious teacher and a stellar collaborator. Erwin is an avid listener, and always hungry for new ideas. He never ceases to surprise me, by his extraordinary diligence, his commitment to his craft, and his capacity always to challenge himself as well as to encourage those around him to do the same. I strongly believe that Erwin Maas will be a real builder of bridges between theatre artists in North America and Europe.

He has already established significant trans-Atlantic collaborations, and I know that he will continue actively to pursue new links and opportunities for cross-cultural work. In my career I have worked with the best and I teach among the greatest theatre artists and thinkers. I believe that Erwin Maas is one of them and he will continue to have a profound impact on the people he works with and on his audiences.”

– Kéline Gotman (Associate Professor, Convenor and Chair, MA Theatre, Text & Performance Studies King’s College London / Dramaturge)

“It is Maas’ ability to work among cultures and among languages that makes him especially valuable to the theater community in the United States as we seek to make our work known abroad and to enrich the arts here through contact with what is being written and produced elsewhere.”

– James Leverett (Head of Columbia University’s Dramaturgy program / Associate Professor Dramaturgy, Yale School of Drama)

“It is because of his extensive experience in networking, teaching and international engagement in the arts, and his sensitivity to the needs of emerging practitioners that Maas has been so eagerly embraced in South Africa by both local institutions and practitioners. His extraordinary generosity of spirit makes him not just approachable but an incredible ambassador for the importance of diversity in the arts. As part of PACE, Maas worked tirelessly over the last three years to connect both students and professionals internationally with Africa in particular.”

– Ricardo Peach (Artistic Director Vrystaat Arts Festival Bloemfontein South Africa / Co-Founder PACE)
